Prediction Proves Not Far From Right for Love Philosopher, But Not Exactly According to Schedule.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal. April 7,-Out of the shallow depths of just a plain, ordinary last summer's straw hat -the kind that the magician borrows from the obliging man in the audience to perform his feats of legerdemain-to perform his feats of legerdemain—came secrets of life and love and passion to the adjacent ears of Sumner Lincoln Merithew, scion of a wealthy New England family, who was sued for divorce here by Beatrice Merithew, youthful war bride.

The tale of the mystic headgear is recited at great length in documentary evidence attached to the wife's complaint, alleging cruelty. According to the husband, the hat told him much it whispered of a separation, spoke of a long journey, pointed the imaginary finger of suspicion at the young wife and other men, and husted at stolen kisses. At the wearer's modest wish it is even declared to have unveiled the past, present and future at much less the usual fee of the average clairvoy-ant.

Predicted Divorce.

Merithew, who is termed a "love philosopher" and a "student of spiritualism" by Arthur A. Chazel, attorney for Mrs. Merithew, disclosed the super-human powers of his "trick" hat in letters to his wife. But while the headgear truthfully predicted a divorce it erred in the prophecy that Mrs. Merithew would join the colony of the unhappy married in Reno.

The romance of Merithew and Miss. Beatrice Marie McIntyre—the present Mrs. Merithew—began here in 1918, while Merithew—began here in 1918, while Merithew—was a soldier at the Presidio. Their marriage was celebrated June 2 of that year. The wife, who was then 18 years old, left her studies at the Dixon high school, in Dixon, Cal., to accompany her husband East.

Shortly afterward Merithew was pro-

Shortly afterward Merithew was promoted to a lieutenancy and was later reduced to the ranks for overstaying his leave from Camp Lee, Va., to be with his wife.

Their happiness soon fied, according to the wife, who alleges that she was accused falsely of infidelity. Under date of May 24, 1919, she says, he wrote to her saying that "he was used to married life, needed a companion," and added that "any young woman would suit him."

added that "any young woman would suit him."

When she went to visit her husband in New Bedford in May, 1819, the wife deciares he locked her in a room, following a violent quarrel, put the key in his pocket and threatened to disrobe and kill her if she tried to escape. Here are some of the secrets of the hat as reported by Merithew, and on which his wife bases her suit for divorce.

"You are on a train. You write a letter. It is for me. Yes, the hat says so. It can not tell. No, I do not think it is a mean letter; the hat says not but sometimes it is mistaken. There has been powder in the hat, but it was weak, but there is going to be strong powder in the hat, then you will feel uneasy, very uneasy, then look out. "He is coming to California before the winter; yes, before the summer is over. Also you are weak-minded. The hat says so. It says I have a strong mind. A very strong mind and my success is certain in what I will undertake from now on."

But in the rebuilding Irkutsk was the Baltimore of Siberia, and when Gen. A. W. Greely visited it some 30 years later, he wrote: "Among Siberian cities, Irkutsk is noted for its churches, orphanages, hospitals, schools, observatories and musums. It is a city of imposing buildings, beautiful homes and is given to lavish hospitality, while it extended business operations are supplemented by all modern municipal equipments including telephony and efficient fire service. "It must be added that it has in summer nearly impassable streets, that mind. A very strong mind and my success is certain in what I will undertake from now on.

"You are going to ask me to come out West. I will come, but not at your request. You are going to Reno for a divorce. You will get it. The hat says so. Be careful! don't go too far. You will regret it if you do.

"He is going to come, yes, wretty soon, look out he is not going to stay with you. You belong to me in your heart but you are young and foolish and this man's love is making you lose all your reason. So take care before, it is too late. The hat says so."

The final letter, telling of his latest romance, but still offering his wife one more chance for reconciliation before he 'pops the question' to his new love!

"I will write you a few lines to inquire about your health.

"Now if you will turn over a new leaf and start life anew with me, we will be happy." I wish you would write to me and say the tinal yes or no. I do not intend to go through life alone.

"I have met a goif friend of mine whom I knew before I went away. She is a very pretty gril, and I am looking toward the future now, as she appeals to me very much. She likes me because I am a gentleman. I not her of my little affair with you, and she has sympathized with me. She is a good sport, and can cook. "I am not going to be impudent and ask her to marry me offinand, but I
